

Soon the Sultan says, "Isn't the flower garden beautiful?"

The Prince answers, "Sure, I guess."

"Notice how the daisies and irises look like the most beautiful painting. And how the marigolds look like a gorgeous carpet for the garden to grow on."

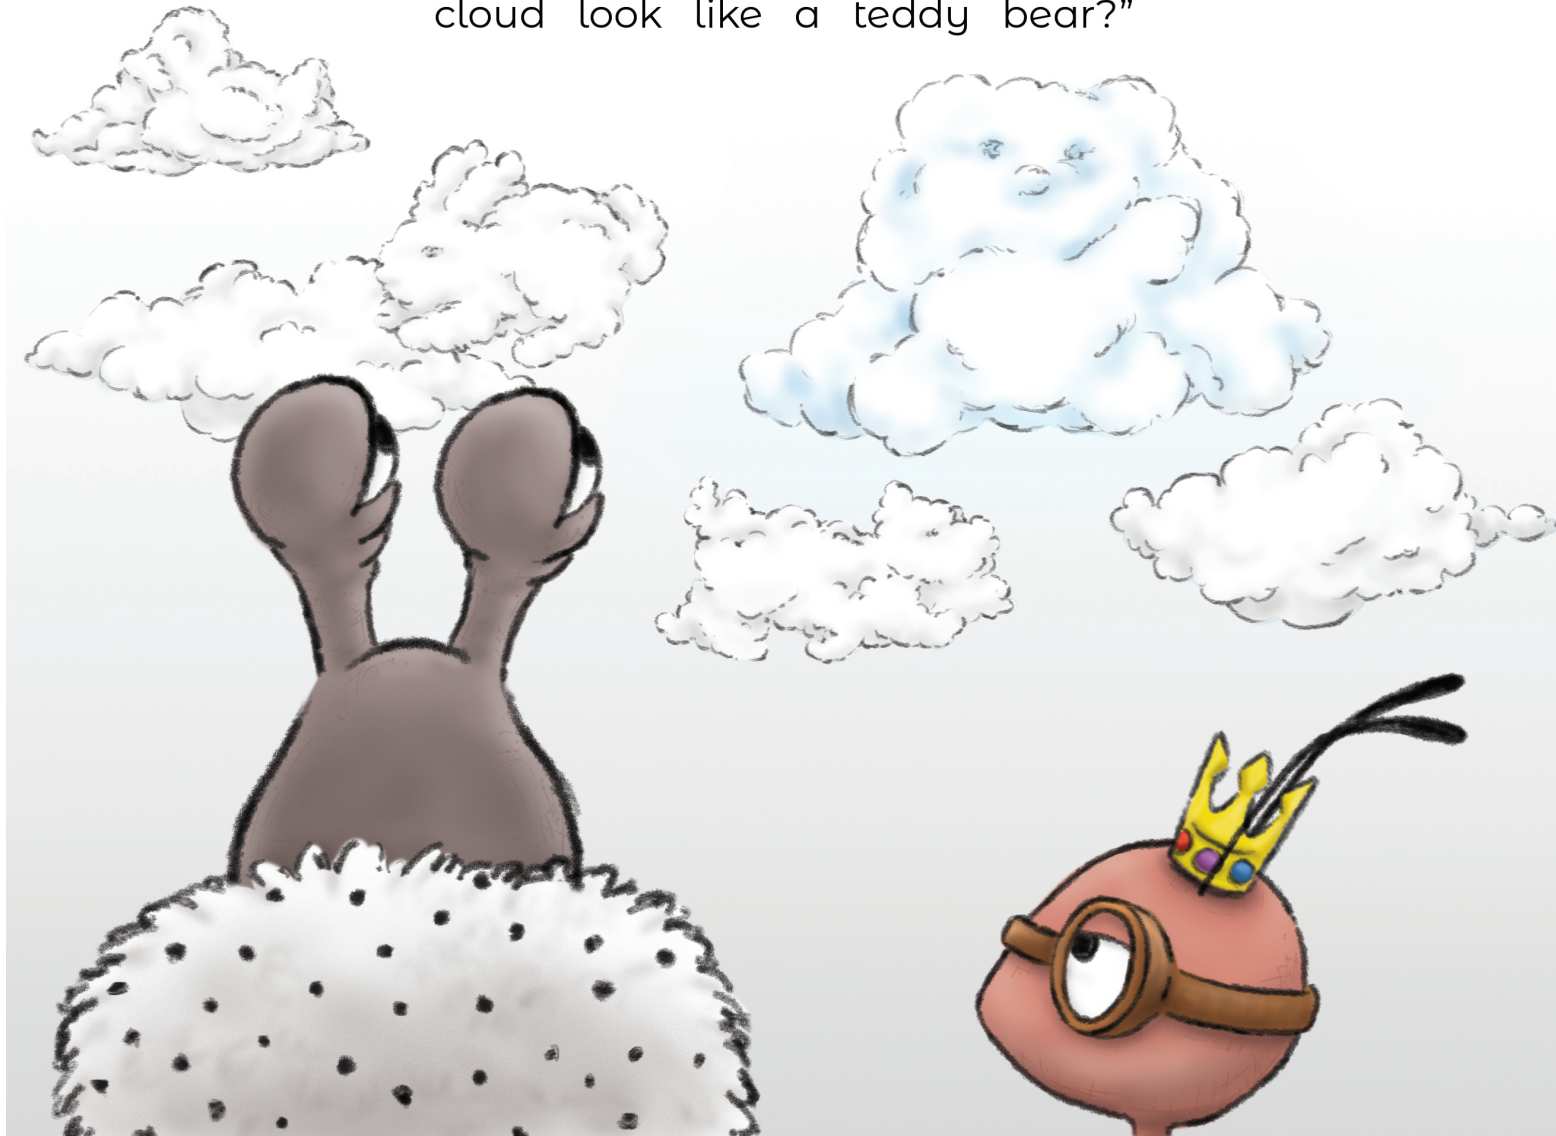

The Prince takes another look. "Yeah, you're right. I hadn't noticed that. But we need to hurry. The Queen has many meetings."

"Go with the flow. Steady and slow," replies the Sultan.

They continue their walk and the Sultan of Slugs says, "The clouds sure are fluffy today."

"They are fluffy everyday," Antrew replies. The slug shakes his head, "No. Some days they are stringy. Some days they are dark and scary. Today, they are fluffy. Doesn't that cloud look like a teddy bear?"

The Prince looked up and thought, "It kind of does." Then he says,
"Well, we must not dillydally by sightseeing."

"Go with the flow. Steady and slow."
